Confusing back-to-back ballots sparks debate about consolidation

By PAUL WOLF

ON THE eve of election day, campaign workers observed steady bewilderment and some tiresome questions, such as, "Aren't we done with elections?"

"People are confused," said Mary Condry on Monday, standing in front of the Fifth Avenue branch of the Carmel Post Office while passing out literature for candidates Barbara Livingston and Marshall Hydorn.

"Some people thought they had voted for these candidates already," she said. "Others didn't even know there is an election tomorrow."

There were many reports that the two-week separation between the primary ballot (March 26) and municipal ballot (April 9) threw off the public.

Certainly the turnout was low, with 39.7 percent of the registered voters participating. The city clerk's office expected roughly 50 percent, matching the March 26 turnout for Carmel.

Livingston, who was re-elected Tuesday, said she will re-introduce to her council colleagues the idea of consolidating municipal elections with November ballots. She hopes the five-person council will be able to consider the proposal at its May 7 meeting.

"I think there is now an overwhelming support for consolidating elections," she said. "People are confused and angry. They've come up to me and said, 'I've already voted for you,' and I respond, 'I

Hydorn's arrival brings new dynamic

■ With election of planning commissioner, Mayor White put back in tie-breaker role on Carmel City Council.

By PAUL WOLF

THE PENDULUM has swung again in Carmel-by-the-Sea.

By replacing Phil Coniglio with Marshall Hydorn, the local electorate has shifted the balance of power on the five-member Carmel City Council and once again placed Mayor Ken White in the pivotal role of tie-breaker.

Hydorn's victory can be characterized as a boost for residential interests over those of business.

Hydorn, a Carmel planning commissioner since 1993, earned 842 votes to incumbent Coniglio's 752.

Meanwhile, incumbent Councilwoman Barbara Livingston was the high vote-getter in the three-person at-large contest, claiming 1,040 votes.

Hydorn starts his first four-year term, Livingston her second. A swearing-in ceremony is slated for 3:30 p.m. Tuesday at Carmel City Hall, located on Monte Verde south of Ocean.

As expected, White overwhelmingly defeated mayoral challenger Frank Perry, 1,080 votes to 384. He begins his third two-year term.

Tuesday's results gave incumbent Councilwoman Barbara Livingston plenty to cheer about.

| Total turnout: | 1,522 | 40.2% |

"Carmel is a garden, and we have to tend it," said the soft-spoken Hydorn, after his victory Tuesday. "People do not elect a council to have a laissez-faire attitude. You have to govern."

Hydorn, a 68-year-old retired airline pilot and owner of Sea View Inn on Camino Real, is a believer in strong regulations to preserve the scale and flavor of the village.

Coniglio, owner-manager of the Mediterranean Market on Ocean, has spoken against overregulation and in favor of flexibility for the interests of families and private property.

Changing dynamics

Hydorn's election anticipates a new dynamic on the council, which is exactly what Hydorn was after.

Aligning himself with Livingston as election day neared, Hydorn sought Coniglio's seat and a new "balance" — two-against-two with the mayor in the middle.

On a philosophical level, council members Coniglio, Paula Hazdovac and Bob Fischer have enjoyed a majority — with or without the support of White. Livingston has been a minority of one on many issues. Now Hydorn puts the heat back on White, whose love of compromise and "bridge-building" likely will accompany a tie-breaker's role on big decisions.

Like Livingston, Hydorn's base of support is the Carmel Residents Association, which endorsed White, Livingston and Hydorn. All three are members, but Livingston has been that group's true champion on the council, according to sources.

As a commissioner, Hydorn grappled with what he considers "out-of-scale" residential development and requests for maximum subdivision of parcels. He said his commission service made his council candidacy possible.

"It is wonderful that the power can change so cleanly in Carmel," he said. "All the candidates deserve credit for not running vitriolic campaigns."

Drivers traveling along Carmel Valley Road have grown accustomed to traffic delays caused by construction. The installation of a new signal at Carmel Middle School and other road improvements should be completed by mid-May, according to a county spokesperson.

Still slow going on CV Road — county project gets underway

By SUSAN BECK

MORE DELAYS, detours and ditches can be expected through April for travelers using Carmel Valley's main thoroughfare.

Just as the dust settled after the California American Water Co. (Cal-Am) finished a $6 million project to replace its main pipeline on Carmel Valley Road, Monterey County Public Works began construction of a traffic signal at the intersection of Carmel Middle School (CMS) and Carmel Valley Road.

The county hired The Don Chapin Co., Inc. of Salinas to install the signal and make road improvements at Rio Vista Drive and Carmel Valley Road.

"There should be very few traffic delays," said Neal Thompson, county traffic engineer.

The road improvements include:

- Extending the eastbound left-turn lane from Carmel Valley Road onto Rio Vista Drive.
- Installing an eastbound left-turn acceleration lane at Rio Vista Drive onto Carmel Valley Road.
- Removing the crosswalk stripping at Rio Vista Drive.
- Installing an eastbound right-turn lane on Carmel Valley Road to the CMS entrance.
- Installing an eastbound left-turn lane at a private driveway across from CMS onto Carmel Valley Road.
- Installing an eastbound dirt pathway on the north side of Carmel Valley Road from Rio Vista Drive to the CMS traffic signal.

The $250,000 project is expected to be

Roy, party of one! Roy, party of one!

WE'LL CALL him Roy because we don't know his real name, and he walked in without a reservation.

It was Thursday night about 7:30 at the fine little L'Escargot restaurant in Carmel when Roy walked in and went straight into the dining room, ignoring owner Daniel Aliotti who was working the door.

WELL, Daniel doesn't allow that, but when he tried to reason with the big fella, the latter again ignored him and headed straight for the john.

Daniel, a true gentleman, rushed past and opened the john door for Roy, then slammed it shut after him and called the police!

SO two husky cops arrive, peek into the john, see Roy's size, and say, "Oh no, we're not going in THERE!"

Now Daniel is becoming thoroughly frustrated, so he calls the SPCA!

Did I mention Roy was an opossum?

AFTER another half hour, an SPCA guy arrives with a cage and a big net, the kind fishermen use to land big salmon and whales.

He goes into the john with the equipment, shuts the door, and Daniel hears 15 minutes of ruckus! "Who's winning?" Daniel calls through the door to the SPCA guy.

NO answer. More ruckus. But pretty soon the thoroughly breathless SPCA guy comes out carrying Roy in the cage!

Daniel breathed a sigh of relief, diners applauded and laughed nervously, and the SPCA guy left to transport Roy to a more remote area where the food is not nearly as good!

IT'S hard to tell which entree Roy was planning to order in L'Escargot, but my guess would be either the Poulet a la Creme or the Yvan Sweetbreads, both to die for!

Poor Roy, he didn't get either one. But say this for Roy's manners — he proved he really DID have to go to the john! A grateful Daniel sank to his knees and gave thanks Roy wasn't an elephant.

The end.

TODAY'S QUOTE ... Former governor Jerry Brown lashing out at an arrogant daily newspaper:

"You'd better respect the people that live in this area because you are a service, not some kind of colonial power. A newspaper is more than about money."

(My guess was the same as yours, but no — he was talking about the Oakland Tribune!)

WHERE NOW? ... With Tom Oliver, 59, retiring from the presidency of Pebble Beach Co., the burning question arises — what will he do next?

With the help of towering thinkers like Jill Margaret Brown of Carmel Valley, Donald Gardner of Carmel Highlands, and others, we have compiled — in the form popularized by David Letterman — a list of "Top 10 Next Jobs for Tom Oliver:"

10 — Stunt stand-in and taste-tester for Robin Leach.

9 — CEO and greenskeeper for Del Rey Oaks Golf Club Driving Range.

8 — No-More-Mr. Milquetoast restaurant reviewer for The Bland.

7 — Touring lecturer on "The Benefits of Getting Up Close and Personal with Employees."

6 — Valet and concierge at Cypress Point Golf Club.

5 — Author of financial world best seller, "Opening a Bank on a Shoestring."

4 — Toyota car salesman.

3 — Scout for Georgia-Pacific Lumber to locate new forests for clear-cutting.

2 — Maitre d' at Ichi-Riki Japanese restaurant.

1 — Bank examiner.

BON VOYAGE, Tom Oliver. We understand they're replacing you with 12 vice presidents!

That either means you're leaving humongously large shoes to fill, or else they have 11 too many vice presidents!

Keep it simple: Kersnar tells CBA about business license tax plan

By KENDALL KLYM

A PROPOSED business license tax based on sales receipts has city officials concerned about the future of Carmel's economy.

Jere Kersnar

City Administrator Jere Kersnar told members of the Carmel Business Association last week that the new tax, based on gross receipts, must be kept simple; otherwise, it could force some businesses out of town. If the community keeps the old tax structure, he said, some businesses will continue to pay too many taxes while others pay too few.

During a luncheon meeting at La Playa Hotel, Kersnar told business owners that the Carmel Business District Advisory Committee accepted a consulting firm's recommendations that all businesses adhere to a rate based on gross receipts. However, he said, it rejected recommendations suggesting a three-tiered tax rate in which retailers would pay the lowest rate, food stores the middle rate and professional services the highest.

The alternative, a single rate for all businesses, he said, would maintain the city's economy.

With the three-tiered rate, "Professionals could relocate into the county to avoid paying the business license tax," Kersnar said. "The feeling of the committee is that food stores in Carmel are more like retailers, not like Albertson's and Safeway. Furthermore, going to a single tax rate is easier to understand, easier to explain."

The new rate would raise yearly business license taxes from $370,000 to $400,000.

No one at the luncheon verbally objected to the tax,

City officials say utility fee needed for storm drain work

By PAUL WOLF

CARMEL WON'T be able to repair its 1,500 feet of failing storm pipes without a new citywide utility fee, according to city officials.

To raise about $1 million, the city would have to impose a fee on all Carmel households and businesses, according to Public Works Director Jim Cullem. As envisioned, the assessment would run about $7 a month per residence.

"Without this fee, I just don't see us having the financial resources to deal with our storm drain problem," said City Administrator Jere Kersnar.

Although Cullem is finalizing a list of priorities for $1 million in overdue pipe repairs and replacements, the issue is unlikely to come before the Carmel City Council before 1997, Kersnar said.

Because a statewide November ballot initiative might rewrite the way utililty assessment districts are formed, "there is no point going forward if the rules are going to be changed," Kersnar said.

At present, the council would not need the approval of either the Carmel electorate or property owners to form a district, he added.

Each year, the city has spent about $40,000 to $50,000 on emergency repairs to storm drains, but an additional $150,000 is needed for non-emergency improvements, Cullem said. Otherwise, disasters (caved in streets or flooded houses) are waiting to happen, he said.

On March 25, "there could have been serious injury" when a failed 24-inch storm drain caused a road collapse on Santa Rita, Cullem said. Repairs cost the city $10,000.

Cullem's projects' list for storm drains will spell out the priorities for the next 10 years. The needed work was identified by the 1995 Drainage Study carried out by Neill Engineers Corp. of Carmel.

The list does not include the replacement of inadequate pipes under Rio Road, which have been the cause of many floods onto the Larson field ballpark. The city hopes to carry out that $220,000 project with federal grant money.

One facet

The storm drain problem is one facet of a larger problem of backed-up public works projects, which total roughly $18.6 million.

Plans are afoot to tackle millions of dollars in deferred maintenance at Sunset Cultural Center via a private fundraising effort. But city officials are unsure how they will meet a number of other needs.

The utility fee is necessary to provide for yet more spending (about $100,000 annually) compelled by revised federal regulations.

Within the next five years, the city may have to comply with tougher standards associated with the Clean Water Act.

Cullem said new requirements would require the city to:

- Increase street sweeping to reduce the amount of solid waste that goes into the storm drains.
- Inspect businesses for "illegal discharges" of materials into the storm drains.
- Cite vehicles that leak fuel or oil.

Carmel has joined other small cities to study and understand the new federal regulations.

BUSINESS

which Kersnar said would be lower for retailers, restaurants and hotels. However, one businesswoman asked about the possibility of alternatives.

"Have you ever considered basing the tax on profits instead of gross receipts?" asked Hanna-Boe Wangoe, the general manager of a video and photography production company.

Kersnar said, "It has been considered. The difficulty of analyzing what profit is, is extraordinarily difficult."

Marc Waldroup, general manager of The Barnyard shopping center, said he agreed with the proposal but wondered how the city would enforce the new tax measure.

"I think it's a fair proposal," Waldroup said. "That's why I'm raising the question of enforceability. In the beginning, (the city) is likely to collect less, but in the long run, it will be a fairly good thing."

Kersnar said he did not expect to collect the additional $30,000 immediately.

"The policy of collecting is somewhat of a problem," he said. "We may not get it, especially in the first year or two."

Other concerns

Another concern among business owners, especially those who rent, was the section of the proposal that requires landlords to pay the tax.

"Some might say, 'If you tax landlords, it's going to affect a business owner's lease, so that person won't make out,'" Kersnar said. "Even though the landlords might pass it on, for most of the businesses in town, the decrease in business tax will be great enough so that the increase coming from landlords won't make a difference."

Kersnar reassured association members that more meetings with residents and business owners would be held before the committee comes to a conclusion about the tax structure.

"Then they will present it to city council in June," he said.

completed by mid-May, according to Thompson.

Related matter

Adding to the upheaval at the mouth of Carmel Valley is the construction of a two-story office and retail building behind Brinton's hardware store at the Carmel Rancho Shopping Center.

The project also includes expanding Brinton's garden shop as well as building a carwash at the southern part of the shopping center.

Another traffic signal will be installed along Carmel Rancho Boulevard between Carmel Valley Road and Clock Tower Place to accommodate the increased traffic generated by the carwash, Thompson said.

The work on Carmel Rancho Boulevard will be done in conjunction with the California Department of Transportation's (Caltrans') plans to add two southbound lanes from Highway 1 onto Carmel Valley Road, he added.

The Caltrans project also includes:

- Replacing the "interim" traffic signal at Highway 1 and Carmel Valley Road with a permanent fixture.
- Upgrading the existing signal at Carmel Valley Road and Carmel Rancho Boulevard.
- Adding a green-arrow light for eastbound traffic turning right onto Carmel Rancho Boulevard from Carmel Valley Road.

Pet vaccination clinic set for Saturday in Carmel

THE ANIMAL Control Program of the Monterey County Health Department will offer low-cost pet vaccinations from 9:30 to 11 a.m. Saturday at Sunset Cultural Center, located on San Carlos between Eighth and 10th in Carmel.

Rabies vaccinations for dogs and cats will cost $4. Microchip identification implants will sell for $22 and amnesty will be offered for all first-time dog licenses.

Vaccinations also will be offered in two other Peninsula locations on Saturday: MonteMart in Del Rey Oaks and at Fort Ord on Schoonover Drive.

CV oak trees mourned, but they had to go

By SUSAN BECK

ALTHOUGH SOME Carmel Valley residents are mourning the loss of two ancient Carmel Valley oak trees, Monterey County officials say the landmark trees posed a threat to passersby.

One by one, the oaks at 43 Miramonte Road — north of Carmel Valley Road across from the entrance to Garland Ranch Regional Park — were cut down last Thursday and Friday.

"They were solid, healthy Carmel Valley oak trees," contended Jason Wachs, a Carmel Valley resident, who noted someone had placed yellow ribbons, flowers and a tombstone at the site. "I've grown and taken care of oak trees for the past 30 years, and there is no excuse for taking these trees down."

But John Soberanes, road district superintendent for the county, denied any wrongdoing by having the trees removed.

When two limbs from one of the oaks fell onto Miramonte Road earlier this month, Soberanes examined the trees and found that water had collected in the "crotch" of each tree.

"The heart of both oaks was rotten," he said. "My job is to keep people from being killed from falling trees. We don't take out healthy trees. They looked good, but it was a false impression."

Soberanes also dispelled the residents' concerns that the county had not contacted the Carmel Valley Land Use Advisory Committee about its plan to cut down the trees.

"I talked to the owner of the property whose house is adjacent to the trees, and I called the advisory committee," he said.

According to Commitee Member Lee Rieman, Soberanes took members of the advisory committee to the site and explained the extent of the trees' condition.

"We hate to see any trees taken down," Rieman said. "But these two trees were a safety hazard."

The Monterey County Planning Department issued a permit, and the county hired Bindel Brothers Tree Service to remove the two oaks.

CV Chamber to stage luncheon

THE CARMEL Valley Chamber of Commerce's April luncheon will occur at noon Thursday, April 18 at Kate's Table at the Carmel Valley Inn, located at Laureles Grade and Carmel Valley Road. The cost of the luncheon is $10 for members, $12 for non-members.

The featured speaker will be Margie Ranc, newly appointed executive director of the Monterey County Travel and Tourism Association.

COUNCIL: Carmel gives Ken White third term

During the campaign, Coniglio said he is an "independent thinker" who wasn't linked to any group, an indirect reference to Hydorn's CRA support.

Harking back

Hydorn borrowed some phrases from Perry Newberry, the "anti-progress" mayor from 1922 to 1924, whose platform declared, "If you want to pave Ocean Avenue, don't vote for Perry Newberry..."

According to Hydorn's campaign ads, the equivalent modern evils are "fast food/take-out establishments," chain stores and development that encroaches on the forest and open space.

Only over the last couple of weeks did Hydorn and Livingston formally link their campaigns; they appeared in newspaper ads together and expressed mutual support

Things weren't as jolly at the Cypress Inn, where mayoral candidate Frank Perry watched the returns come in. Perry lost by nearly 700 votes to Ken White, the incumbent mayor.

Phil Coniglio:

Balanced city council lost — not restored

By PAUL WOLF

TO PHIL Coniglio, the Carmel City Council just lost the kind of balance that really counts.

In himself and Councilwoman Paula Hazdovac, the council had two "young, working people" making decisions with three older, retired members — Mayor Ken White, Bob Fischer, and Barbara Livingston.

"I thought we had a good balance," said the 41-year-old Coniglio, an owner and manager of the Mediterranean Market on Ocean Avenue.

Tuesday revealed that it is now even harder for working people to be part of Carmel's elected government, Coniglio said.

Phil Coniglio

"I think I was able to give some voice to business, being from one of the last remaining family businesses on Ocean Avenue," Coniglio said.

He also believes a balance existed between the stricter Carmel Planning Commission and the more flexible city council. The commission is dominated by members of the Carmel Residents Association, and now the council has a majority of CRA-supported candidates — White, Livingston and Hydorn, Coniglio noted.

"They've gotten their vote back, and I wish them luck with it," he said. "The CRA is calling the shots."

More time

Coniglio, who served one four-year term, said he will enjoy having more time to spend with his wife, Star, and their infant daughter Margeaux. He also has been occupied with an extensive store remodeling project.

Coniglio admits he could have campaigned harder, but he had neither the time nor the energy to do so. In addition, he said "it is hard to win against double-billing," referring to the united effort by Livingston and Hydorn.

"They went aggressively door to door," he said. "You couldn't even get in the front door of the post office. They telephoned people. Some of us have better things to do with our lives."

Coniglio said a formal, organized opposition to the CRA has not been established because the kinds of people who belong to it don't have the time.

A DECENT MAN ... Passing of Carmel's good old John Kirchenbauer last week was a sad blow for decent people everywhere. For if John was anything he was a truly decent man in the finest sense of the word.

John was on earth to help people and to make them happier. He succeeded better, I believe, than most any other person I've known.

COMPLETELY selfless, John won't be replaced here — he'll only be remembered.

When you think of all the meanness, the "in-your-face" mentality, the greed and the total lack of common courtesy that is rampant today, then you realize what a rare gem we've lost in John Kirchenbauer.

Indeed, the entire Peninsula is poorer for his passing.

THESE FOOLISH THINGS ... It was Easter Sunday in colorful San Juan Bautista. Early afternoon temperatures were in the 80s. Umbrellaed tables on the charming, tree-dotted patio at Jardines were crowded with lunchers (brunchers?).

A two-man combo — one on guitar, the other on mandolin — was turning out delightful Mexican and Spanish music.

A SMALL, not-quite-3-year-old Carmel Valley boy, Christopher Tollner, watched and listened intently, then marched up to them and asked earnestly:

"Do you know 'Hey Diddle-Diddle?' "

Bystanders roared, but the kindly mandolin player SANG it for the tyke. Wild applause!

A mellow afternoon in San Juan Bautista ...

NOW it's Thursday night of last week on KSBW-TV and sports anchor Dennis Lehnen is interviewing Rick Alcocer of the Tanimura & Antle agriculture firm, and begins this way:

"Rick is with T & A ..."

Suggestion to Dennis — Whenever mentioning that company, always say the full name, never just the initials.

It's a small thing, but trust me on this, Dennis.

WHILE we're here at KSBW, we should report that 30-year-old news anchor Dina Ruiz is off on a honeymoon to "an exotic island" with new husband, 65-year-old Clint Eastwood.

After their surprise Las Vegas wedding two Sundays ago, Dina missed one day of work last week, worked four and is now off again for a week.

NEWS director Laura Clark said Dina is scheduled to return Monday.

In an interview with the S.F. Chronicle, Dina said the marriage was Clint's idea, that there is a prenuptial agreement which she wouldn't discuss, and that:

"THE FACT that I'm only the second woman he has married really touches me."

LASTLY, a thought for your weekend:

Life is extinct on other planets because their scientists were more advanced than ours!

ELECTIONS

don't think so.'"

The issue is the familiar one of tradition versus efficiency and convenience. There is no doubt that combining ballots would save money and improve turnouts. But ending separate springtime ballots would end a tradition that dates back to the city's incorporation in 1916.

"If we keep hacking away at these traditions, soon there will be nothing left," said Councilwoman Paula Hazdovac, who opposes November city ballots but would go along with primary consolidations.

Hazdovac, elected in April 1994, also said she is opposed to increasing the length of her own term by seven months.

At a retreat nearly two years ago, the council decided local elections should continue to stand alone. Livingson wants to press the issue again, using the recent confusion to illustrate the need.

Councilman Phil Coniglio, who lost his re-election bid Tuesday, indicated he is keeping an open mind. "It's true that Carmel has a longstanding tradition, but common sense tells us to consolidate," he said. "After the last election (the March 26 primary), people were congratulating me, or asking, 'How did it go?' I know Carmel likes to do things differently, but consolidation makes sense."

Cutting costs

Combined ballots, for starters, would cut the cost of elections roughly in half, according to City Clerk Jeanne Brehmer.

The 1994 municipal election cost $8,840, she said. The total cost of Tuesday's election should be in the same ballpark, she said.

"I think the cost of a single election is insignificant when you think of its importance," said Councilman Bob Fischer, first elected in 1986. "I like the elections as they are. Local races can get lost in all the hullabaloo of state and national elections."

Coniglio, who lost his seat to Marshall Hydorn, said he supports a referendum on the issue. "I don't think just five people should decide if we should do this," he said. "It's too important an issue for that."

Linda Anderson, president of the Carmel Residents Association, also supports consolidation, saying, "In the past, this was just a philosophical issue. This year, we've been dealing with tremendous confusion and fiscal responsibility. It's something we just have to do."

CONIGLIO

office some time in the future — underscored real philosophical differences between him Livingston, Hydorn and the CRA camp. The other side, he argued, cares more about trees than the needs of people.

"There is a different mindset," he said. "They accused me of trying to ruin Carmel. I'm not extreme one way or another. I believe they are extreme. I'm for balance."

Coniglio, born and raised in Carmel, believes the new council will be inclined "to put more restrictions" on businesses and residents.

Arms folded, Marshall Hydorn waited for more results on Tuesday night. He was to learn it was well worth the wait.

in campaign literature.

"Both of our campaigns decided it was a good strategy," Livingston said. "We decided to do things together. We made it very clear that we represented protecting residential values in Carmel."

Hydorn, who announced his candidacy just after the New Year, admitted his campaign got off to a slow start.

White's tie-breaker function was felt strongly between 1992 and 1994, before Hazdovac replaced Barbara Brooks on the council. Brooks and Livingston were often of like minds, while Coniglio and Fischer shared underlying views.

During the past two years, there has been tension between the council, which has tended to be sympathetic to private property, and the commission, which has been inclined to give strict interpretations of the zoning code.

Hydorn's arrival could lead the new council to hold a tighter line on individual development requests. Said Hydorn: "I don't want to wake up one morning and realize I don't recognize my own city."

Discussion of Pfeiffer Beach upgrade plan slated for Friday

PINE CONE STAFF REPORT

A SPECIAL public meeting to discuss an access plan and a low-scale approach to improve the facilities at Pfeiffer Beach in Big Sur will be held at 2 p.m. Friday at the Big Sur Lodge Conference Center in Pfeiffer Big Sur State Park.

Monterey County Supervisor Sam Karas and members of the Big Sur Multi-Agency Advisory Council also will address the issue at a 10 a.m. meeting at the conference center.

The U.S. Forest Service has amended its plan to upgrade Pfeiffer Beach and to develop an access strategy for Sycamore Canyon Road, a private one-lane drive to the secluded beach.

After almost two years, forest service officials bowed to the concerns of a group of Big Sur residents who argued the initial improvement plan would attract more visitors, increasing the current traffic congestion experienced during the summer months and holidays.

The advisory council also will discuss issues relating to Parks Management Co., a Morro Bay-based firm, that was hired to maintain the facilities at Pfeiffer Beach in November, when severe budget cuts forced the forest service to seek assistance from the private sector.

Further information about the meetings may be obtained at 647-7755.

Company nears acquisition of Asilomar contract

Carmel group doesn't make it to search's second phase

PINE CONE STAFF REPORT

ONLY ONE bidder, Delaware North Parks Services, made it past the first phase of the bidding process to assume management of Asilomar Conference Center in Pacific Grove.

One of five organizations to submit proposals after a contract with Pacific Grove-Asilomar Operating Corp. was terminated Jan 31, 1995, Delaware North impressed evaluators with its reputation as manager of concessions at Yosemite National Park.

"We owe it to the people of California and to the millions of others who use California's parks to move expeditiously but responsibly through the process of finding a management corporation worthy of so significant a California landmark," said Donald Murphy, director of the California Department of Parks and Recreation.

Murphy said the other four companies — Asilomar Management Co. of Carmel, Asilomar Operating Corp. of Pacific Grove, Aramark Leisure Services of Philadelphia and Volume Services of Spartanburg, S.C. — did not meet "criteria established to guarantee a continuation of quality service."

The second phase of the bidding evaluation began Wednesday at the Department of Parks and Recreation headquarters in Sacramento.

Delaware North is based in Buffalo, N.Y.

The renovation of Paradise Building at the corner of Ocean and Dolores is completed.

Laub's Paradise building spruced up, good as new

By PAUL WOLF

DOWNTOWN Carmel's only art deco-style building has been fixed up and made good as new.

Following two-and-a-half months of construction that necessitated complicated sidewalk detours, the renovation of the Paradise Building at the corner of Ocean and Dolores is complete.

"It is like a brand-new building," said property owner Paul Laub. "Everything is now up to code, just as you would have to do if you built the building today."

The structure, built in the 1920s, now houses Carmel Forecast, an apparel store that is allowed half its display area to exhibit clothing bearing the names of places like "Carmel" and "Pebble Beach."

Before the renovation started Jan. 1, it housed Jewels on Ocean, St. Moritz Sweaters and Laub America Corporation. Both the jewelry store and the sweater shop have been relocated to other commercial spaces on Ocean.

Laub, a Carmel-based entrepreneur, bought the building in 1972.

Extensive work

The extensive building renovation included:

- Structural improvements.
- Retrofitting.
- New plumbing and electrical work.
- Installation of sprinklers.

"We spent a lot of time, energy and effort to finish this renovation," Laub said.

Carmel Assistant Planner Kim Cole said the exterior of the building has some unique features. "I would agree that its overall shape is definitely art deco, with its high smooth walls and vertical windows." she said. "But it is kind of a deviation of that form, not necessarily pure art deco."

Local Restaurateur Found

Michael Borofka Joins Fish Ranch Restaurant Team

Long time Carmel resident, author, survival lecturer and restaurantuer, Michael Borofka has joined the management team at The Fish Ranch Seafood Restaurant. Borofka, formerly guest service manager of Piatti's Restaurant, has officially been managing The Fish Ranch Seafood Restaurant for the past three weeks.

Borofka, known to his friends, and customers as one of the most efficient and pleasant restaurant hosts and managers on the Monterey Peninsula joined the management team of the restaurant on a part time basis in January. During the past months Michael has been hosting at the seafood house on Friday and Saturday evenings.

"Both John and I are very pleased that we can make this announcement to the Carmel and Monterey communities," said Karen Foley, co-owner of the restaurant. Many of our customers already know Michael from his five years at Piatti's. Many of his friends and following are excited about his resurfacing in the hospitality industry," Foley added.

Borofka has had a long and impressive restaurant career on the peninsula. Aside from his five years at Piatti's he also worked at The Hyatt Regency and Spanish Bay.

"Michael will be a tremendous asset to The Fish Ranch organization. His background in the restaurant industry locally is very impressive. But more importantly, he worked for the Chuck Muer organization which Karen and I are very familiar with. Muer was a seafood restaurant impresario. Michael obtained his restaurant foundation from Muer. This alone is a great asset," stated John Foley.

The Foley's began The Fish Ranch Seafood Restaurant seven months ago. In that short period it has become known as one of the most exciting, popular eateries on the peninsula. The Pacific Northwest lodge setting serves as a great background for some of the best food on the central coast.

GREAT FRESH SEAFOOD

"We are all looking forward to the upcoming season. Our menu has been evolving over the winter and our new spring and summer menu will host a much larger selection of seafood. People have been asking for more food from the sea and we are diligently working to accommodate their needs. In the weeks ahead we will be featuring our raw bar, and a menu similar to traditional seafood house. We have been consulting with Tadich's Grill, McCormick and Schmick, Shaws Crab House in Chicago and the Grand Central Oyster House in New York to totally focus on great seafood," stated Foley.

Aside from the freshest fish this side of the Aquarium, the greatest ambiance in town and the most picturesque outdoor deck The Fish Ranch has found Borofka. Go see him this weekend. He's as friendly as ever. Chipper. Glad Handing. And there is a quicker frisk in his step. As he walks you to your table, he often keeps pace with the great Jazz band at The Fish Ranch. Live Bait, featuring Mary Ingram and Karen Stevens, appear every Friday and Saturday evening. Call for reservations. The place is great. It is a real find. A true seafood house. With personality in the decor, and the door.

Honoring 'Big John'

The sun was shining brilliantly down on everybody who attended last Saturday's celebration to honor the life of John Kirchenbauer, the well-known and well-liked Carmelite who died March 30. A parade down Ocean Avenue and a reception on Carmel Beach highlighted the tribute, which was attended by family (above), friends and colleagues with the Carmel Fire Department, where 'Big John' was a longtime volunteer. ■ IN APPRECIATION: BRIAN SMITH 1955-1996

Patience, perseverance were his strengths of character

Brian Smith, 40, manager of the Carmel Regional Fire Ambulance, lost his battle with cancer on March 24.

'He was community-minded and unselfish with his time. He never looked for the spotlight. He was a driving force with the volunteers.'

— Bob Rice

By SUSAN BECK

TRUE TO his private nature, Brian Theodore Smith quietly dealt with a cancer that took his life Sunday, March 24 at the Hospice of the Central Coast in Monterey.

With the exception of a few close friends and his family, the 40-year-old manager of the Carmel Regional Fire Ambulance (CRFA) took a leave of absence in November without any fanfare about his illness.

"It was Brian's way," said Sidney Reade, captain of the Mid Carmel Valley Fire Department since 1987. "Quietly, slowly he was gone. A subtle retreat. We all honored his privacy. My friend is not here in body, but his spirit will always be with me."

Among the community members that filled All Saints' Episcopal Church in Carmel Saturday, March 30 for a service of thanksgiving for Mr. Smith were Carmel City Councilpersons Bob Fischer, Barbara Livingston and Paula Hazdovac.

Members from the local police, fire and ambulance departments struck a somber repose along the church's aisles.

"Brian was an excellent leader," said Bob Rice, a former Mid Carmel Valley Fire Department volunteer firefighter, who is currently the department's representative on the CRFA board of directors. "He was community-minded and unselfish with his time. He never looked for the spotlight. He was a driving force with the volunteers."

In 1983, Mr. Smith became a volunteer firefighter for the Mid Carmel Valley Fire Department. Within four years, he was promoted to lieutenant and then to captain. He was named battalion chief in 1991 and held that post until his death.

"When Brian was running a fire, I never had a problem with the way he was thinking," said Gary Carmichael, fire chief of Mid Carmel Valley Fire Department for the past 10 years. "I never 'took the fire away' from him. He was a very logical person."

Highly respected

Some 150 people attended a reception honoring Mr. Smith that followed a funeral procession of emergency vehicles from All Saints' Church through Carmel to the Mid Carmel Valley Fire station.

"Brian placed life in high respect," Reade said in a tribute to Mr. Smith at the reception. "The kindness in Brian's heart was displayed by his patient demeanor. He had a quiet common sense that drove his steadfast energy. His memory will be in our presence forever."

A lifelong resident of the Monterey Peninsula, Mr. Smith was born Sept. 25, 1955 in Monterey. After graduating with the first class at All Saints' Episcopal Day School in Carmel Valley, he attended Carmel Middle School and Carmel High School.

"I had the privilege of handing him his high school diploma," said his mother Pam Smith, who then, in 1973, was a member of the Carmel Unified School District Board of Education.

After earning a bachelor's degree in psychology at UCLA, where he was a student trainer for the football team which won the Rose Bowl in 1976, he received his master's degree in business administration from the University of Northern Arizona.

In 1989, Mr. Smith was named both Monterey County Firefighter of the Year and Monterey County Emergency Medical Technician of the Year. He also is responsible for starting the annual Mid Carmel Valley Fire Department's "Great Balls of Fire" street dance fund raiser.

"Brian had everybody's respect," Rice said. "He was a good decision maker; he had a way to cut through all the red tape. More than anything, he was a leader."

In 1991, Brian was named battalion chief.

Mr. Smith is survived by his mother, Pamela and father, Clyn Smith, a longtime Monterey Peninsula general surgeon who retired 10 years ago; a brother, Bud, of Carmel; and two sisters, Sharon Smith, of Berkeley and Mollie Smith-Nelson, of Sacramento. His mother, Marilyn Decker Smith, died in 1962.

The family asks that any memorial contributions be sent to the Mid Carmel Valley Fire Department, 8455 Carmel Valley Road, Carmel, 93923.

What every spouse should know before filing a joint return

Above the Bottom Line

By JAMES P. CALANDRA, CPA

THE ADVANTAGE of filing a joint tax return is well known — you generally save money compared to filing separately.

However, there is at least one potential disadvantage. Both spouses are jointly and severally liable for the entire income tax bill, including interest and penalties, even if one earned most or all the income.

This issue most commonly arises when there are unpaid taxes from joint filing years, and a couple later separates or divorces. The IRS can pursue either spouse for the full amount. If you're the easiest one to find, or if you have liquid assets, you can end up paying the entire bill.

When this happens, the only relief is the so-called innocent spouse rule. If you can prove that you had no reason to suspect tax shortfalls and you did not personally benefit from unreported income, or that you signed joint returns only under duress, you may get off the hook.

Unfortunately, this is easier said than done. The IRS and the courts have been notoriously stingy in allowing innocent spouse relief.

What can you do to head off trouble? First, consider the obvious.

If your family spends much more money than the income shown on your tax returns, warning lights should go off. If you don't understand all the tax and financial issues in the joint return, ask questions. In certain circumstances, you may even want to consider hiring your own tax professional to advise you before signing.

If you are headed toward separation or divorce, it may be best to file separately. You may pay a little more tax, but that's better than leaving yourself liable for the tax sins of someone who is no longer on your side. Don't file jointly unless you're sure that all income has been reported in the return, and the taxes have actually been paid.

■ Create your own capital gains tax

Earlier this year, it seemed as if investors would be treated to a capital gains tax cut. Now, it isn't clear when — or if — that cut will come. If you can't wait for tax relief from Washington, here are some strategies you can use right now to trim your capital gains.

✓ Sell assets with the highest tax basis, since high-basis assets generate the smallest capital gain. This strategy is especially effective if you have stocks, bonds, or mutual funds that were purchased in different blocks at different prices.

✓ Use high-basis assets to make family gifts. Hold onto your low-basis assets, since these will be "stepped up" to market value when you pass away. Because of this step up, neither your estate nor your heirs will pay capital gains tax on the built-in appreciation. Your age and health are factors to consider.

✓ Consider a tax-free exchange. This is one of the few big breaks left in the tax law, but the rules can be tricky.

Basically, you're allowed to exchange a business or investment property for another property of the same "nature or character," such as exchanging an apartment building for an office building. On an exchange, the taxes will be deferred until you dispose of the new property.

✓ Make an installment sale. For example, if you sell real estate, consider taking back a note instead of selling for cash. Capital gain is taxed as you receive your note payments, while a cash sale triggers 100 percent of your gain in the year of sale.

✓ Consider establishing a charitable remainder trust. You donate an appreciated asset to charity, and the charity is able to sell the asset without paying capital gains tax.

You receive income from the charity based on the full value of the asset, as well as an income tax deduction for a contribution to charity. The charity keeps whatever is left, after its income obligation has been met.

■ Monday's the day

Here's a look at what the Internal Revenue Service is expecting from you, postmarked by Monday:

✓ Individual income tax returns for 1995 are due unless you file for an automatic extension. Taxes owed are due regardless of extension.

✓ 1995 partnership information returns are due.

✓ 1995 annual gift tax returns are due.

✓ Deadline for making your 1995 IRA contribution.

✓ First installment of 1996 individual estimated tax is due.

✓ Final payment is due for taxpayers paying 1993 retroactive tax increase in three annual installments.

The Golden Years

By Myles Williams

A survey of longtime marriages drew responses from 576 couples who have been married 50 years or more. Many of the couples had withstood financial and behavorial problems: over the years, the survey found, 24 percent of wives and 18 percent of the men at times had doubted that their marriage would last. How many now describe themselves as happily married? Sixty percent of the husbands; 51 percent of the wives.

Harold Shue spent much of his lifetime working for a bakery equipment company, rising to general manager. But citizens of Anna, Ohio, (population 1,200) know him best as "Mr. Mayor." Shue served twice in that post, from 1981 to 1983 and from 1988 to 1995. He bowed out at age 92, saying "I finally decided it was time to make a break."

CHS, RLS baseball teams stay on a roll

■ Padres, No. 5 in CCS, set to host PG Wednesday.

PINE CONE STAFF REPORT

MISSION TRAIL Athletic League play will continue Wednesday when the Carmel High School varsity baseball team plays host to Pacific Grove at 4 p.m.

The Padres, ranked No. 5 in the Central Coast Section rankings, are 6-1 in the MTAL and 16-1 overall prior to their final two games in the Carmel Classic tournament, which began Monday at the CHS diamond. PG is 5-2 and sits in third place, just one game behind CHS.

The Padres were victorious in their first two games of the Carmel Classic — 13-6 over Gonzales on Monday and 5-4 over Monte Vista Christian on Tuesday. The Padres and King City were due to hook up yesterday in a game played after Pine Cone press deadline.

The tournament concludes today with the matchups based on the first three days of competition.

Victories over Alisal, Alvarez

In MTAL action last week, CHS picked up an important road victory over Alisal on Wednesday, April 3. Both teams entered the game with 4-1 records, but it was Carmel, behind the solid pitching of John Martine, that came away with a 6-2 victory.

Martine went the distance and scattered eight hits. Ironically, the Padres, who scored four first-inning runs, managed only one hit, but took full advantage of six Alisal errors to gain the upper hand.

The following day, Carmel clubbed 21 hits and erased Alvarez 18-1. Amir Masliyah and Toby Lauterbach each banged out three hits, while Lauterbach, Colter Bissell and Matt Allen had 3 RBIs apiece.

■ Pirates use late rallies to stun tournament foes.

By JOHN DAVI

After a relatively quiet first half of the season, the Pirates entered the annual Carmel Classic tournament this week, and, in their first two games, have erupted for two thrilling comeback victories.

On Monday, the Pirates hosted Pacific Grove on the RLS diamond, and despite a five-run first inning, found themselves down 7-5 in the sixth. Sparked by two-run doubles off the bats of Ryan Kitagawa and Shawn Cronin, Stevenson scored five runs en route to a 10-8 victory.

Junior Allan Tulloch, who pitched the final two innings, was credited with the win.

Slam turns it around

On Tuesday, the Pirates topped Clayton Valley of Concord 7-5 at the Carmel High field. Down 4-0 early, Stevenson evened the score in the fifth inning when Mike Bennett cracked a grand slam over the center field wall. Winning pitcher Joey Baker put the Pirates over the top with a two-run double in the sixth.

RLS was due to host Monte Vista Christian in the tournament's third day on Wednesday in a game played after Pine Cone press deadline. The tourney will conclude today, though the schedule of games wasn't to be determined until Wednesday's slate was complete.

Last Thursday, it was Kitagawa who belted a grand slam as the Pirates, behind six-hit pitching of Joey Baker, routed Alisal 11-2. RLS held a commanding 7-0 lead after two innings over visiting Alisal.

Stevenson, 3-3 in the MTAL, returns to league play on Wednesday when it travels to Salinas to play Palma, which is in second place at 5-1.

Youth Baseball action heats up

By PAT LITTLE

THE CARMEL Youth Baseball '96 season completed its second week of play last week. Here's a look at some of the highlights:

■ GIRLS SOFTBALL (ages 9-10): Allyson Oldfield's grand slam home run in the final inning sealed a 16-14 victory for the Carmel Glass Giants in their opening game on Tuesday, April 2 against the Marina Blackbirds. Other standout performances for the Giants: Cassie Bettencourt, who belted a triple, walked twice and scored three runs; and Kristie Sanchez, who cracked a home run and enjoyed a great all-around game...

■ PINTOS (ages 7-8): Solid hitting and fielding prevailed in the game between Paine Webber and M.L. Stern on Saturday, March 30. Ben Holber, John Callanan Sean Luster and Matthew Ross pounded out hits for PW. MLS' Peter Gray slugged a hit to right field, while teammates Patrick Reynold wowed the crowd with a run-scoring double to center field and Nicholas Pinkerton doubled in two. PW's Allen Duarte's glove worked overtime as he caught two fly balls, and Justin Demaria (PW) played a solid second base. In the field for MLS, SS Reynold caught a pop fly, threw to Brittany Martin at 2B, who relayed the ball to Peter Gray at 1B for a triple play...

■ MUSTANGS (ages 9-10): Mission Ranch took on the Diamond Dogs on Tuesday, April 2. DD's Clint Walker belted an inside-the-park home run in the first inning and added a two-run double to lead his team to 9-8 victory. Morgan Zealear (DD) belted a triple. For MR, Reagan Pollack ripped a double...

Payless, which saw its early 6-0 lead disappear, rallied for three last-inning runs to top Top Line Toys 9-8 in a game played Wednesday, April 3. Kyle Green got credit for the game-winning RBI for Payless with his hit in the bottom of the sixth-inning to end the see-saw affair...

Remax topped Tri Cal 5-4 on Thursday, April 4. The game's top hitter was Tri Cal's Dylan Roddick, who doubled in a run. Travers Newell (RMX) knocked in a run when he collected his team's only hit. Fleet-footed Amber Arenz demonstrated good base-running skills by scoring from second base for RMX. Thomas Duckett (RMX) recorded all three outs in the fifth inning. Teammate Matt Kerros held TC scoreless over the final two innings to earn the save...

Payless scored 11 runs on walks in a 17-5 win over Remax last Saturday. Remax, which was led by Joey Parigi (last season's Pinto home run king) who had two hits in three appearances, notched five runs in the fifth and final inning to break the shutout. Payless highlight: Kyle Johnson, 4-for-4 with three doubles and four RBI...

Trailing 11-9 heading into the final inning, Mission Ranch plated three runners to pull out a 12-11 victory. Tri Cal enjoyed five-run innings in both the fourth and fifth to overcome a big deficit, only to see MR gather itself for the win last Saturday afternoon. Leading hitters: Reagan Pollack (MR) with 3-for-4 including a double, and Jonathan Copsey (TC) and Matt Connelly (TC), who each went 2-for-3. MR's Russell Keene celebrated his birthday by drilling a single. Teammate Jamie Puccinelli transformed a bunt into a triple...

Topline Toys put up five runs in the fourth inning and went on to record an 8-4 triumph over Diamond Dogs. Mackenzie Davidson (TLT) led the way with a double. TLT's Charlie Crissen and Andrew Stocker and DD's Austin Kettle all were 2-for-3 at the plate. Noah McCormick (DD) struck out the side in the third. Not to be outdone, Charlie Crissen (TLT) repeated that performance in the sixth. TLT's Matthew Dally saw lots of action in right field and produced a little of his own when he stole home. Teammate Zachary Kirshner also swiped home...

Correction from last week's roundup: Due to inaccurate information provided, Steven Perry wasn't given proper credit for earning the save in a wild game played on Opening Day. After Remax had erupted for 11 runs in the top of the sixth inning to overtake Mission Ranch 13-12, it was Perry (RMX) who took the mound for the first time and shut down the opposition to preserve the incredible come-from-behind victory.

■ BRONCOS (ages 11-12): On The Beach held on for a 4-3 victory over Copies by the Sea on Opening Day. Kevin Dorey singled twice for OTB, and teammate Adam Canepa bunted in the go-ahead run in the bottom of the sixth. Seventh-inning hits by Kenny Kleinkopf and Derek Johnson (CBTS) produced a run, but Luke Perkins, with two runners in scoring position, recorded an unassisted out to end the game. Kevin Dorey, who worked the final three innings, was the winning pitcher for OTB. CBTS catcher Evan Smith combined forces with pitcher Bin Jonsson to nail a runner in the sixth...

The Blacksox snatched the lead from New Masters Gallery with four runs in the final inning and went on for an 8-5 Opening Day win. Zac Baysinger and Joey Aguilar both homered to put the Blacksox ahead. Erik Shepner (NMG) belted a run-scoring double. Nick Pacitto's sacrifice fly in the third brought in the tying run for NMG. Other notable performances: Erik Van Valkenburgh's (NMG), RBI single; Joey Aguilar (BSX), two RBIs and three hits; Gregory Turner (NMG), line drive single to center; Brett George (NMG), seven strikeouts in four innings on the mound; SS Ben Cardenas (NMG), an unassisted out, then threw to 1B Jonathan Wilson for a double play; Ryo Furuki (BSX), great running catch in left field...

Lemos 76 defeated the Blacksox 10-4 on Tuesday, April 2. Top Blacksox hitter was Kyle Breuleaux, who homered twice and knocked in five runs. Teammate Zac Baysinger went 3-for-3 with a double and an RBI. Nick Pacitto swatted a run-scoring double with one RBI to lead L76. Ralph Powers, Max Reiser and Andrew Dahl completed a 6-4-3 double play for L76. Reiser caught a fly and threw to Erick Carl at first for another L76 twin killing. Catcher Baysinger (BSX) made a swift throw to 3B Todd Myer to catch a runner stealing...

On The Beach held off the Blacksox last Saturday morning for a 7-6 win. OTB scored five runs in the fifth and another in the sixth before holding the Blacksox to two runs in the final frame. Top hitter for the BSX was Zac Baysinger with a home run and a double. Adam Canepa homered for OTB. Other strong batting performances: OTB's Gavin Edwards (2-for-3) and Brendan Rimer; and BSX's Bryan Langslet (2-for-3) and Joey Aguilar (3-for-4). BSX 2B Alex Katz snagged a line drive to rob Joe Stoffers of a hit, and Nick Pacitto (BSX) stopped another line drive by Kevin Dorey. OTB's Dorey struck out five over three innings. Covie Gonzales fielded the ball well at 2B to make an unassisted out for OTB...

The two-hour rule ended last Saturday afternoon's game between New Masters Gallery and Copies by the Sea. NMG, with two runs in the sixth, posted a 14-12 victory. Kenny Kleinkopf hit a two-run home run for CBTS. NM's top hitters were Brett George, who went 2-for-4 with two RBIs, and Benny Cardenas, who went 2-for-4 with three RBIs. Bin Jonsson (CBTS) was 2-for-3 with one RBI. NMG's Eric Shepner made a great catch in center field.

Youth Center gets A+

Dear Editor:

As a representative of the graduating class at Carmel High School, I would like to extend our appreciation to the city for providing kids in our community with the Carmel Youth Center.

Middle school and high school kids are there all the time working out, doing homework or just meeting with their friends. It is a safe and healthy environment; we are lucky to have it.

Recently we held Senior Night at the youth center. This was a special event just for seniors where we watched movies and played pool and spent time being together as a class before graduating and going in different directions. We would like to thank the city and the youth center for their generosity and support.

Places like the Carmel Youth Center make Carmel a better place for the kids that live here. Please know we appreciate it and hope future seniors will remember many good times like our Senior Night.

Next up at Flanders

Dear Editor:

In the 20 years that I have lived in Carmel-by-the-Sea, a proper use for the Flanders Mansion has been sought, too often unsuccessfully. It was, briefly, the residence of the city manager, the offices of Carmel Heritage Foundation and the venue for an art school.

Its maintenance and improvement was never vigorously addressed. Now, very wisely, provision has been made in the request for proposals for the selected lease applicant to provide the funds to ensure that necessary repairs to the decaying structure be made. The awarding of the lease is clearly tantamount upon any applicant's ability to carry out such an undertaking.

It is, in my view, important that Flanders Mansion not be defined as a revenue resource but as a financially neutral addition to the list of buildings available for the nurturing of cultural and educational programs of benefit to the residents of the village and the Peninsula. And, secondarily, it is important Flanders is a place for the edification and enjoyment of visitors to our town.

Now, a proposal — the Flanders Library and Heritage Museum — comes before you that seems eminently suitable, offered by an organization with ties to the new university campus. Its charter spells out its purposes and intentions which are varied and many:

- The collection and preservation of collections of graphics and texts produced by notable local artists of national reputation;
- A venue for seminars on the art of writing;
- A laboratory for the study of curatorial techniques;
- A public facility for receptions and conferences;
- And the flexibility to address other needs and services as they present themselves.

I urge you to give favorable consideration to this proposal.

Robert W. Campbell, Carmel
(Editor's Note: The aforementioned proposal is but one of four projects that will be considered by the Flanders Mansion Task Force. Other proposals were turned in by the American Youth Hostels, Asilomar Management Co. of Carmel and the Culinary Arts Institute of British Columbia.)

Plenty of bark

Dear Editor:

I wonder why there is so little mention in our newspaper of the wonderful "Neighbor Helping Neighbor" organization here in Carmel known as Project St. Bernard?

These splendid volunteers spend their time and energy working in their neighborhoods wherever there is a need. So many elderly residents in Carmel live alone and often do not know where to find assistance when it is needed.

Project St. Bernard members are standing by to call on people with problems and to help them in any way they can. When recently I was unable to find housing in the part of Carmel in which I wished to live, a St. Bernard volunteer was able to locate the perfect spot because she knew of a neighbor with a guest cottage for rent.

It is my understanding we have a varied neighborhood (ages and interests). So I'm looking forward to meeting my new neighbors at one of the functions my Project St. Bernard member arranges.

This is but one of many services provided by this group, which is endorsed by the Carmel City Council. If there are any people who would like to join these good neighbors and make a contribution to this community they should call 624-2891.

The people of the city of Carmel should be very proud of these good citizens.

Bonnie Brice, Carmel
(Editor's Note: Before and after its inception, The Pine Cone has carried numerous stories on the Project St. Bernard program.)

Working together

Dear Editor:

Meeting with constituents and business people to exchange information and to hear new ideas is an invaluable part of being a council member in Carmel-by-the-Sea.

Opportunities to do this increase during campaign election time when "coffees" and gatherings are scheduled for candidates in the business district and in the homes of residents.

At a recent "coffee," I was asked why I supported the acquisition of open space when our village is under great pressure to fund deferred maintenance of our buildings and to hire a code enforcement officer. This good question gave me the opportunity to reiterate my position on the acquisition of open space, which is that it must be done through private funds.

An example of this was the recent purchase of a lot next to our Mission Trail Park. Public-spirited individuals got together under the umbrella of the Big Sur Land Trust and the Carmel Open Space Task Force to buy this lot and save it from development.

This is an example of how private citizens, with the encouragement of their city government, can accomplish extraordinary things.

Barbara Livingston, Carmel
(Editor's Note: Ms. Livingston was reelected to the Carmel City Council in Tuesday's election.)

Bring it Bach next year

Dear Editor:

KBOQ radio and Simpson's restaurant in Carmel are to be congratulated for the recent dinner celebration held in honor of Johann Sebastian Bach's birthday.

Those of us in attendance know how special an evening can be when an excellent musical ensemble is merged with a superb five-plus course meal.

I hope it will be an annual event.

We're operating at a net loss in the forest

By KAREN FERLITO

COMMENTARY

I WANT to clarify some of the issues regarding tree requirements on the Giordano property on Ladera and explain our general philosophy regarding replacement trees (Pine Cone, April 4).

The commission regards protection of trees during construction and replacement trees as of prime importance. Every tree in the forest will eventually die. Therefore, if we are to have an urban forest in Carmel, we must always include replacement trees for removed trees and make sure that trees survive construction.

We approve approximately 70 percent of tree removal applications. However, less than 50 percent of the required replacement trees ever achieve maturity and become members of the urban forest. Therefore, we are operating at a net loss in the forest. This is a very serious problem. Small lots and large homes do not leave much space for trees.

Our requirement of six upper canopy trees on the Giordano lot was not "planting by formula." We followed the city forester's staff recommendation. The decision was unanimous and was completely consistent with adopted Carmel City Council policy regarding tree density and past practice; therefore, we did not feel the necessity to "defend" our decision at the council meeting.

For a lot of 20,000 square feet, we could have required that as many as 15 upper canopy trees be planted. There was no public comment at either of the meetings where this project was discussed. While there are many eucalyptus trees growing in the vicinity, we never recommend non-native species.

Tree of choice

At present, pine is the upper canopy tree of choice. Cypress is often recommended closer to the ocean. Redwoods require more water than we generally receive here, so they are only used in special circumstances.

By making it a condition of approval that upper canopy trees not be planted, the planning commission and council leaves us with an interesting problem should a future owner desire upper canopy trees.

And, what of the other upper canopy trees in the vicinity, such as those planted along Ladera, at several homes, and at Larson Field? Where do we draw this no upper canopy line? Do we base it on our short lifetimes or on the historical extent of the native Monterey Pine Forest?

Carmel's urban forest is comprised of both upper and lower canopy trees. Our oaks and pines complement each other in a unique way. The upper canopy serves to frame our views and keep the ever-increasing large homes in scale.

The oaks provide a sculptural effect. We strive to maintain the health of our remaining forest and provide replacement trees for the future forest. We do consider the size of the lot and the neighborhood. We felt that this particular lot had ample room to site the trees so that neighboring views would not be adversely affected.

We welcome public input at all of our meetings, which are held at 1:30 p.m. the last Tuesday of every month in the council chambers.

It'll pervade Pacific Grove during annual Good Old Days

By BETH PENNEY

DOWNTOWN PACIFIC Grove goes all out this weekend as its 39th annual Good Old Days celebration takes shape.

Lighthouse Avenue will be transformed into an open-air market, with more than 200 stalls offering handmade crafts and food, and entertainment offered at various places around town. Admission is free.

After a kickoff Old Fashioned Wood Shaft Golf Tournament at the Pacific Grove Municipal Golf Links on Friday, the festivities continue all day Saturday and Sunday.

> 'The Good Old Days is a celebration of traditional hometown atmosphere. PG residents welcome people from all over the community to celebrate and have fun.'
> — Moe Ammar, Executive Vice President Pacific Grove Chamber of Commerce

Saturday's events include the annual "Hometown Pancake Breakfast" at Jewell Park at 8 a.m., a parade down Pine Street at 10 a.m., the ninth annual Police Motorcycle Riding competition at noon, and a Victorian fashion show and afternoon tea.

The parade features marching bands, military color guards, the Wells Fargo Carriage, antique cars, and motorized floats, along with entries ranging from the Salinas Liberty Belles to the Pacific Grove's Feast of Lanterns' Royal Court.

On Sunday, the Troupers of the Gold Coast will perform the olio from Monterey's First Theater's current play at 3 p.m. The pie-eating contest, bubble gum-blowing contest and the in-line skating show, all of which may not be Victorian but which certainly demonstrate Pacific Grove's home-town pride, also take place Sunday.

Less anachronistic events include a Firefighters Muster-Horse Cart Race and the Make-and-Break Bucket Brigade on Lighthouse Avenue.

Quilt Show one of the largest

The annual Quilt Show at Chautauqua Hall at Central and 16th streets, for which there is a nominal admission fee, is sponsored by the Monterey Quilters' Guild. This year the show features more than 100 quilts, making it one of the largest shows ever presented here.

"The Good Old Days is a celebration of traditional hometown atmosphere," said Moe Ammar, executive vice president of the Pacific Grove Chamber of Commerce, which is responsible for the event. "PG residents welcome people from all over the community to celebrate and have fun."

New events

Several of the events are new this year, Ammar pointed out, including the Victorian Tea Party Saturday afternoon at the recently opened Dorothy Marie's Tea Co. on Lighthouse Avenue. The fashion show, initiated by the Chamber and later taken over by the Pacific Grove Heritage Society, is in its third year, Ammar said, but is larger this year.

The variety of entertainment offered during the festivities has also expanded, according to Ammar. In addition to the Troupers of the Gold Coast, various musicians and singers will perform on two stages set up on Lighthouse Avenue.

These include Professor Gordon's Ragtime Theater at the Robert H. Down School Auditorium on Pine Avenue and the Monterey Peninsula Dickens Fellowship's "Mutual Friendship Music Hall," featuring a Gay '90s sing-along and readings of Dickens's works. The latter takes place at Jewell Park at 1 p.m. Saturday and Sunday afternoons.

Pacific Grove puts on its best Victorian finery for this event, and at the same time displays the relaxed ambiance that has earned it the title of "The Last Home Town!" Whether you plan to shop, eat, admire, listen or participate, downtown Pacific Grove is the place to do it this weekend.

Nostalgia is the name of the game for the Good Old Days in Pacific Grove this weekend.

Pebble Beach blooms again for second annual garden show

By ROGER HENWEDGE and JOAN DRUMMOND-MILLER

HOW LUCKY can we get? Just as spring is bursting out all over the Peninsula and we're in the mood to go outside and get our hands in the dirt, right next door the Pebble Beach Garden Show opens at The Lodge.

The event is produced jointly by Garden Design magazine and The Pebble Beach Co. this Friday, Saturday and Sunday, April 12 through 14. Its theme is "American Garden Style, Indoors and Out." What perfect timing for getting new ideas for our patios, gardens and yards!

Huge tents have been put up near the third fairway of the golf links. The Grande Pavilion will have 14 display gardens created by leading landscape designers from Central and Northern California. An adjoining tent will house a floral arcade, and a third is the Garden Marketplace — 50 shops featuring plants, garden gifts, furniture and accessories.

Chock full of events

Seminars will be held all three days, with a wide variety of topics, including "Sitting Pretty: An Illustrated History of the Garden Seat," "The Pleasures of Home-Grown Tomatoes," "A Passion for Roses," and "Gardens of Transformation: Creating a Spiritual Sanctuary."

The Casa Palmero Estate in Pebble Beach will host "Designs for Dining" exhibits — more than two dozen table setting displays as well as exhibits by The Faberge Collection, Wedgwood, and Macys Monterey.

An added bonus is a rare opportunity to tour four Pebble Beach estate gardens, including the original S.F.B. Morse house. Tours will depart every 15 minutes from the front of The Lodge Conference Center from 10 a.m. to 3:30 p.m.,

ARTIST PROFILE

Photographer Larry Dale Gordon's career made by capturing light

■ He's shot it all — from nature to supermodels to print ads for a bevy of corporate clients — but loves the serenity of Big Sur best of all.

By SUE BARTON

PHOTOGRAPHER LARRY Dale Gordon is a collector of light.

Something so ephemeral might seem impossible to capture, but then you see Gordon's photograph of Rio de Janeiro at dawn. Taken from high on Corcovado ...

"I was alone on the peak with the great statue of Christ at my back," Gordon recalls. It is a splendid portrait not only of the bay and Sugar Loaf wreathed in mist, but of light's greatest source. The sun lurks there, smoldering on the horizon; in a moment, it will set the day ablaze.

Larry Dale Gordon

Elsewhere, it seems the moon might be the source of the tender beams washing over a solitary figure. This, however, is entirely Gordon's skill at work.

In his own words, from his book The Versatile Photographer, "The so-called 'secret' of photography is light. It is not just the secret of photography, it is photography.

"Light does not come in a pre-wrapped package, all ready for use; it comes in an infinite variety of quality and color, both natural and artificial. It will amaze and enlighten you, leaving you humble in its simple but awesome glory."

Recognize this magazine ad? Besides BMW, Gordon's clients have included Coca Cola, Marlboro and General Motors.

In another shot, Gordon combines light with water to form a fierce, shimmering silver storm around a female nude.

Music Teachers' Association of California to hold scholarship auditions

THE MUSIC Teachers' Association of California (MTAC) will hold its 17th Annual Scholarship Auditions for young pianists from 8:30 a.m. to 3 p.m. Sunday in the Canterbury Woods auditorium, 651 Sinex Ave., in Pacific Grove.

Every year piano teachers in Monterey County are invited to enter students in these competitive auditions. The students perform a selected piece from memory in front of a live audience and judges Laurel Brettell and Marina Grin, both on the faculty of San Jose State University.

The culmination of the auditions is the 3 p.m. awards ceremony on the stage of the auditorium.

The idea for the Scholarship Auditions came 17 years ago when the Monterey Branch of the Music Teachers' Association was looking for some way to acknowledge the achievements of young local musicians. The purpose of the Scholarship Auditions is not to rank young pianists with a first, second and third prize, but to make cash awards available to a greater number of students.

The auditions have four age categories: Junior (under nine years of age), Lower Intermediate (ages 9-11), Upper Intermediate (ages 12-14) and Advanced Division (ages 15-18).

Awards range from $50 to $150 depending on the age category, and one major award is normally given for each five students competing. There are also discretionary awards of $25 in each category, awarded by the judges for an outstanding performance of a particular piece.

PENINSULA STAFF REPORT

THE LOCAL jazz community unites to honor one of its devotees, "Jazz Tides" columnist John Detro, with a benefit concert at 7:30 p.m. Tuesday at The Jazz Store in Carmel.

Admission is a minimum donation of $20 per person. All proceeds will be donated to John, who has been hospitalized since April 2 and is due to be released this week.

Slated to perform at this "old fashioned jazz jam" at the venue which John refers to affectionately as "that jazz store" are Alan Berman, Jackie Coon, John Cortez, Dottie Dodgion, Weber Drummond, Lee Durley, Buddy Jones, Helcio Milito, Jim and Bill La Pine, Alan Pendergrass, Bob Phillips, Kenny Stahl and others.

John Detro

An auction will feature a jazz painting by John's favorite painter Bruni; jazz photos by John's close friend Will Wallace; items from The Jazz Store; plus tickets to the Monterey Jazz Festival and the Monterey Bay Blues Festival. There will be door prizes as well.

Unlike most Jazz Store concerts, this event does not include a wine tasting, although concert-goers are welcome to bring their own wines or other beverages.

John's "Jazz Tides" column appears every week in Peninsula, the arts and entertainment section for The Carmel Pine Cone and Monterey Times newspapers.

Gordon would like to travel less, spend more time in Big Sur

Justly famous, Gordon, whose career spans 30 years in advertising, editorial and corporate photography, has a client list that includes BMW, Marlboro, Coca Cola, General Motors, Chrysler, Jeep, Town and Country, Time, Life, Travel and Leisure, Architectural Digest and many others.

Gordon has worked and lived all over the world, but now makes his home in Big Sur with his wife, Corinna, an artist.

Light is one of the most glorious qualities of the Big Sur landscape, according to Gordon.

"It's intimidating and frustrating the way it changes so rapidly, but the physical nature of the place is so grand with its fogs and reflections from the ocean that when you get something, it's spectacular. In part, I love it because even when it's shrouded in fog you can walk uphill to the sun."

A year and a half ago Corinna Gordon finished treatment for breast cancer. It was a hellish experience but the couple feel strongly that it had a very positive side and rearranged their lives and their priorities.

"I want to establish a creative pool locally," Larry says. "After visiting Big Sur for over 25 years, it was always my dream to live here. Now, I'd like to cut back on the long-distance travel to some extent. I'd like to bring all this experience home."

He gestures toward the coastline.

"Talk about light. What could be better than this?"

Assemblyman Bruce McPherson, Bob Bussinger, Bart Bruno and local United Way board president Larry Foy discuss golf scores at a tournament to benefit The United Way.

Hundreds of children gathered at the Frank E. Sollecito, Jr. Ballpark in Monterey to gather Easter eggs, while a huge brown Peter Rabbit distributed candies.

The knot is tied — Vive Dina and Clint Eastwood!

WELL, THE KING has married his princess, and all the people of the land are very happy about it. So, dear Clint and Dina, since you tied the knot, I put the questions to you that everyone is asking me.

Will you keep working, Dina, or will you be starting a family? Clint, will you quit working and live on Dina's salary? (Someone actually asked that question.) Clint, will you make a star of the beautiful Dina? Or will you just live happily ever after?

At any rate, congratulations. All I hear are glowing words, hoping that your love for each other will grow and grow.

■ Bunnies, bunnies everywhere!

The race was on! A large Peter Rabbit and hundreds of other little "bunnies" (tots) were racing around the Frank E. Sollecito, Jr. Ballpark in Monterey on Saturday, April 6, hunting for the proverbial Easter eggs.

The colored eggs brought prizes for the lucky finders—large Easter baskets filled with all kinds of candy delights and a coupon for Sunday brunch at Ferrante's restaurant.

One adorable 2-year-old, Arianna Rybkowsky of Seaside, was much more interested in chasing a huge goose at El Estero Lake than collecting eggs, much to the surprise of her father, Roger, who had to accompany her on her merry chase.

Later, at Carmel Middle School, tots took part in the City of Carmel's Easter Egg Hunt, sponsored by the Carmel Host Lions Club.

Cub Scouts led groups of children to different sites to find the eggs, the tots segregated according to age. A wonderful idea, for how can a 3-year-old compete with a 6-year-old?

As I stood on watching, the distinct personality of each child fascinated me. One would methodically collect each egg as he walked. Another would go flying out to the perimeter to start searching, while others would pick up an egg occasionally but were more interested in observing what everyone else was doing.

Easter baskets were also distributed, and an Easter Bunny and his helper, a large brown bear, pointed to where the eggs could be found.

A gorgeous, warm sunny day made the two events smashing!

■ Golf tourney garners much-needed funds for United Way

Whenever Hunter Finnell, KCCN-TV sports director and anchor, hosts a sports event, you can bet it will be a success and that the event will usually benefit a local charity.

Monday, April 1, was no exception. In a special benefit for The United Way of the Monterey Peninsula sponsored by KCCN-TV, brave golfers, playing at rain-soaked Rancho Cañada golf course, came in from the rain to cocktails, auctions, dinner and tournament awards.

Then KCCN broadcast a telethon and featured a live auction and donor presentations.

The auction prizes were marvelous, including kayaking for four, sailing tours on the Chardonnay, Concours d'Elegance tickets, dinner certificates for local bistros, golf for four and health club memberships. Finnell is a born auctioneer. If anyone can get people to bid at auctions, he can.

Event co-chairs Larry Foy and Dick Rotter and committee members Marshia Brown, Jeff Davi, Nancy Foy, Bill Golden, Norm Pitts and Paula Simpson worked hard to make the event a success.

"Hold still!" says 2-year-old Arianna Rybkowsky to the large goose she decided to pursue Saturday, April 6. Arianna seemed more interested in the goose than in gathering eggs at Frank E. Sollecito, Jr. Ballpark in Monterey.

The cameraderie throughout the evening was especially evident at our table where Steve and Dolores Gunia, Dr. Herbert and Elaine Berman, Morley Brown and Ron Weitzman each won a bottle of wine.

People playing golf in a driving rain to help the United Way is what it's all about — doing that extra little bit to help others.

■ Spring hits the runway in Carmel Valley

Straw hats, spring flowers, Easter eggs and ladies in pretty pink, peach and creamy yellow frocks filled Rancho Cañada's Fiesta Room Wednesday, April 3 at the Carmel Valley Women's Club's "Springtime in the Valley" Annual Luncheon and Fashion Show.

Peggy Donley, owner of Donlé of Carmel, presented a fashion show using members of the club and six adorable youngsters dressed in spring green, black and white, polka dots, checks, stripes and several styles of sportswear.

The models were well-trained by Donley, as were the children.

After club president Beverly Flippen welcomed members and guests, she thanked her event chairman Irmgard Feldon and all the event committee members. Then, a silent and live auction was held, and raffle prizes were given to lucky ticket holders.

Dorothey McEwen, owner of the Holman Ranch in Carmel Valley, told us she will be meeting her daughter, Kristi Kileall from Seattle, at Graceland on April 24, after which they will visit the Grand Ole Opry together.

The Carmel Valley Women's Club will donate all proceeds from the event to scholarships for Carmel Valley girls, to the Carmel Valley Library and to the Carmel Valley Community Youth Center.

Those interested in becoming members may find out more by calling 659-5329 or 659-5027.

■ Home for Easter

Don and Jackie Craghead's home in Seaside is a perennial holiday house. At every major holiday, their home is a glorious medley of colors. Easter featured white furry bunnies, pink and red roses and a lovely tree of multi-colored eggs.

Easter dinner at the Cragheads' home is always filled with style, grace and wonderful people. Lt. Col. Jerome Pradier of the Defense Language Institute, Frances Armstrong of North Monterey County High School, the Rev. Richard Nance, Mary McKinney Edmonds, Ph.D. of Stanford University and author Shelby Steele of Pebble Beach were all a delight to talk to. After a tasty dinner, we all sat discussing interesting topics like the O.J. Simpson case.

If I am very lucky I might be invited again next year.

JOHN SAAR'S PASSION FOR EXCELLENCE

For more information on this property
Call 1-800-395-7362 ext. 2060

The focus of John Saar's real estate marketing includes ways to enhance the home and the garden. In his passion for excellence, John created, "THE SAAR SYSTEM," integrating technical and creative fields which include gardening and landscape architecture, remodeling and interior design, fine arts, advertising, photography, event marketing and creative financing.

This new home on the Bird Sanctuary was enhanced by THE SAAR SYSTEM.

Saar brings added value.

"My job is to add value to the sale of your home, not just list it," John says of his successful approach. "I try to create a synergizm of enthusiasm between myself and my sellers. Many times they are depressed because their home has not sold. With renewed energy, together we bring out the very best qualities of the home. Then, I use my impact marketing strategies to promote those qualities and create excitement."

Saar is a trouble shooter. He specializes in revitalizing expired listings, homes which have been on the market but have not sold. He takes justifiable pride in utilizing often small but significant changes such as, his "instant landscaping," which makes use of his nursery of mature potted plants used to create an entryway garden or transform a barren stucco wall. He also uses fine art and furniture to warm the interior of a vacant or sparsely furnished home.

This wonderful new home is a perfect example of John's enhancement of an expired listing. This is a fabulous property and Carmel Point's best value. There was only one thing missing with this well-built, well-designed home. It was not being presented to its best advantage. Saar looked at the property with fresh eyes. He saw that the positive features like the great site, schools, spaciousness, floor plan and amenities needed to be pulled together into one cohesive package.

Saar was able to help a $1.2 million home live up to its value. You can't expect a buyer to purchase a fantastic property worth thousands of dollars wrapped in a plain package.

Come see this classic cottage and Saar's beautiful gardens at 26372 Camino Real in Carmel. This could be the best buy in Carmel.

Many times it doesn't have to cost the seller anything, only rearranging furniture, pruning for the view or freshening the garden.

This new home at 26372 Camino Real on the Bird Sanctuary was enhanced by THE SAAR SYSTEM.

1. The gardening did not warm this elegant Carmel Stone cottage. It felt naked. It needed some foundation planting and some color. The grass in the front and back yard accentuated the value of this 100-by-108-foot lot.

2. The interior painting was stark white. Saar had the walls softened with a warmer white. Suddenly, the beautiful white trim and detail stood out. It was better appreciated.

3. The location is exquisite but the outdoor patio was too small to enable an owner to appreciate it. He had the patio enlarged.

4. The home has soaring plaster and wood ceilings. Saar brought in the need artwork and furniture to enhance the spacious interior.

5. As you can see in John's photograph to the left he is using his advertising acumen to focus on the new home on the Bird Sanctuary itself. This will bring more people in and the "new package of enhancements" will sell it.

"I don't just list property, I market property." says John. "In this market, sellers need more. I am willing to do something different for my clients so their property will stand out. Obviously I stay with things that work, but I keep trying innovative ideas to stay fresh and spontaneous.

Come see a great property and Saar's beautiful gardens. He really believes this could be the best buy in Carmel – see for yourself.

Terner's death will leave big void in state housing

■ Bosnian plane crash robs California of articulate leader who believed building more homes was the answer to long-lived woes.

THE DEATH of I. Donald Terner in last week's fatal trip to Bosnia with Secretary of Commerce Ron Brown leaves a big leadership void in state housing policy.

California Trends

By Bradley Inman

His work building affordable housing was a model for legislation, state administrative policy and for local governments. He also set a standard for home builders who might be tempted to build sloppy housing and in the wrong places.

He challenged environmentalists to be more tuned into affordable housing needs, and he confronted NIMBY (Not In My BackYard) homeowner groups to be more tolerant.

In the last 10 years, any conference, summit or legislative briefing on housing often included Terner as a keynote speaker. Invariably, he was the most articulate and convincing speaker at the podium pushing people to think and act.

Part of his appeal was his enlightened view of how to respond to and solve complex housing problems such as homelessness, high homeownership costs, sprawl and economically-squeezed single-parent households.

Though passionate and even emotional in his presence, Terner was a deeply analytical leader who formulated through the years a convincing philosophy on how to address the state's housing woes.

Terner believed that the only way out of California's housing muddle was to build more homes to meet the demand. However, he believed the housing should not be built in environmentally sensitive areas and he believed it should be quality construction. He also pushed for good planning, encouraging officials to build housing close to jobs and transit.

One of his most important accomplishments while directing housing programs in the Jerry Brown Administration in the late 1970s was pushing Caltrans to set aside $300 million for affordable housing that was lost when the Century Freeway was built.

INMAN: California will sorely miss Don Terner — an enlightened leader

More recently, Terner's bully pulpit was his own creation, BRIDGE Housing Corp., which gave him the credibility to back up his non-stop advocacy for helping those in need.

An independent, public-purpose corporation without any ties to the government, BRIDGE has become the largest non-profit builder in the country and a model for how housing solutions should be forged. With projects up and down the state, more than 6,000 housing units, representing $600 million in value, have been built by BRIDGE.

On each and every housing project that he built, Terner would personally choose or veto details such as interior paint colors, landscaping and finishings.

"We called it the 'Don factor' in the budget when he came in and demanded the carpeting be changed or a room be repainted," said his long-time associate Carol Galante. "He insisted on quality and he got it."

Like Terner himself, BRIDGE doesn't fit into a box. It is a private corporation, a real estate deal maker, an ambassador for good design and planning, an environmental good citizen and a tireless advocate for overcoming exclusionary housing policies.

Consequently, he appealed to builders who were frustrated getting approvals for their projects, environmentalists who were discouraged by sprawl and social activists who needed an articulate spokesman.

On each and every housing project that he built, Terner would personally choose or veto details such as interior paint colors, landscaping and finishings.

A way with words

Part of his charm was his words. Terner reinvented the vernacular that surrounded the housing problem — which he believed was critical for bringing policy makers along — for getting bankers to invest and for tempering public anxiety about helping the poor.

For example, the housing bureaucrats had come up with terms such as "low-income households", or "people who earn less than 80 percent of the median income of the metropolitan SMSA." These were precise legal definitions but not terms that lent people to feel passion about the problem.

Terner stopped using the term "affordable housing," dropped all of the government gobbledygook and began describing the housing plight of "working families like school teachers, fireman and beat cops." He emphasized the term "families," not "households," and dropped the "median income" nonsense and used "people earning $12,000 to $25,000," which everyone could understand.

By coining more human descriptions of the problem, he lifted the issue from the cellar of a few liberals and government program managers to a broader constituency of investors, elected officials and where possible, a skeptical public.

In the coming years, BRIDGE will continue to set the pace and be the model for state housing policy, but California will sorely miss the leadership of I. Donald Terner.
